

What does the future hold for us?

During the course of our economic lessons at school we were asked to analyze the theory of unemployment and its various types. Discussing the global situation today we started questioning what our lives will be like and what our opportunities will be. We are a few months away from entering university and we question: will we be able to have the job prospects when we complete our education. Our future seems to be quite uncertain but hope dies last and we hope that in the future the rate of unemployment will have decreased and there will be prosperity in our times
